

Letter in The Observer

All you need is love

No wonder your anonymous letter writer is still single ('I'm picky and proud of it', Letters, last week). He or she held out for 'someone I like, am attracted to and trust, whose company I enjoy and who has similar values to mine'. This overlooks love. I fell in love with someone whose values were the direct opposite of mine. There have been difficult patches, but we have been happily married for 33 years. We have also learned a lot from each other.
